Adults
Learning to Code: The Basics - March 25 at 6:00PM to 8:00PM
Have you ever wondered what allows you to see Facebook and other webpages, or what the code flashing across your screen could mean? Join us as we work our way to learning how to write the basics of HTML and CSS code. Advance sign up required.

All Ages
Women’s History Month - March 11 at 6:00PM to 7:00PM
Celebrate Women’s Right to Vote! Come hear award-winning teacher and scholar Dr. Melissa Walker of Converse College speak on the Women’s Suffrage Movement and the ratification of the 19th Amendment - 100 years ago this year! Best for ages 12 and up, but suitable for all audiences.

Book Review by Rachel - “The Left Hand of Darkness” by Ursula K. Le Guin
In her classic science fiction novel, “The Left Hand of Darkness,” Le Guin asks her readers to ponder deeply provocative questions with staggering gentleness and compassion. Fans of old-school science fiction, lifelong learners, and the modern nonbinary or genderqueer reader will find it almost as emotionally challenging as it is cathartic and intellectually rewarding. Inside, a human man struggles to complete a solitary mission to contact an alien world populated only by hermaphroditic, genderfluid people whose fantastically detailed, strange and familiar society feels almost more like home than home. The culture clash is only resolved by its antithesis—human connection.
