INMAN LIBRARY

Volume 51 • February 2019

Storytime- Storytime, Tuesday 10:30AM

It's February in Inman!

We'll be checking in with the groundhog to see how much winter we have left - any guesses? Could it possibly snow again? Our weather's been so changeable lately that who knows what our late winter-early spring will look like. Still, I know we're all anxious to see our bulbs peeking out; often daffodils are some of the first signs of new life. Remember that we have a sign-up list at our circulation desk for anyone who'd like to bring an arrangement of flowers for a week for the beautification of our Library and pleasure of our patrons. We'd love to see flowers and plants of all kinds being shared as they bloom and grow for spring.

If you're still sticking to your resolutions, we're hoping we can help. We have our adult exercise classes on Mondays at 5:30PM for an hour at the modest price of $2.00 per class. If you planned on learning a new hobby, think about joining our Itchin' to Stitch group. It's relaxing and invigorating at the same time. If trying to get your finances and budgets in check, consider attending Couponing 101 with Southern Savers Jenny Martin who will enlighten us all on how to save big bucks, especially at the grocery and drug stores.

It's also Black History Month, and for that occasion Barbara has prepared to discuss the book "Chariot on the Mountain" by Jack Ford for the Inman Book Club. Ford explores a female slave's struggle for freedom in pre-Civil War Virginia, as she is freed and then kidnapped and enslaved again. All adults are welcome for a lively discussion and light refreshments.

Also, join us as we learn about the Civil Rights Movement and create a scene or portrait of an activist to attach to our library's Black History Month Art Quilt. Kids, tweens and teens will be participating in this quilt, and no sewing is required. Homeschoolers will get a treat too as the library's own Karen McDowell performs a historic monologue of a Civil War spy.

Please let us know how the Library can serve you better. Happy February!
